THE CLOSING HOURS.

Yesterday afternoon the closing irs were given up to such cerrob-tive evidence, and no flaw was deorative evidence, and no flaw was developed in the tales that had gone before. The witnesses examined were Mrs. Lena Perkins, of the Sanitarium roming house. Carl M. Mauck, a bookkeeper at McCoy's livery stable: Atty. M. P. Braffet, whom the McWhirters engaged to handle their case, when they first arrived; and William G. Rodigkeit, night manager of the Vienna cafe. The most startling new fact developed sas that Sheets told Raleigh Councilman Martin Mulvey would know where Donaldson had gone, and that Donnaidson had gone, and that Don-son had gone, and that Donaldson i the waiter in the Vienna that he as going to use his ill-gotten wealth open a gambling house over Muly's saloon, and also that they had the suckers' they had taken it away from ping west," and hoped they would

LAST WITNESS.

The last witness called was William G. Rodigkeit, night manager of the Vienna cafe. The reason for calling him last was that he works all night and must get his sleep in during the day, for which reason he was not called

He had known Donaldson for five years, and last saw him in the morning of Sept. 20, about 3 a. m.

"He came in and sat down at a table," said the witness, "and I started to bring him a glass of water, a knife and fork and napkin, when he said, 'Never mind a napkin, when he said, 'Never mind a napkin. I'll use this,' and he reached into his inside vest pocket and took out a wallet from which he took several bills. One of these was a $1.000 bill, another a $500 bill, and I couldn't tell the denominations of the others. He tucked the $1.000 bill in his vest as a napkin and put the rest away. Then he said to me:

"'What do you think of suckers carrying $10,000 around on their person?
We have got them on a train and I hope they keep going.' Then he told me he made the money playing poker. He said. I think I'll take it and start a gambling house over the Occidental saloon.' Then he told me he just walked in from the jungles.

"He went on and said, 'It was a shame to take the money,' and that 'it was like taking money from a baby.' Cross-examination brought out the fact that a waiter had told the witness that Donaldson had used the bill for a napkin, wiping his mouth and moustache upon it.

At the conclusion of his testimony the state rested.

Mrs. Lena Perkins went on the stand at loclock. She said that she was one of the proprietors of the Sanitarium reeminghouse and that Bell and Davis had roomed there in September. Her description of them tallied with the description of the bogus officers who whisters, Davis came there or Australia and the proprietors of the case on the grounds dismissal of the case on the grounds dismissal of the case on the grounds that neither of the charges was substantiated by the evidence.

"I gather from the remarks of the counsel and the wording of the com-plaint the offense they have tried to prove is one that would be known in common law as accessory after the fact.

"In the complaint the words, cealing the offense from a magistrate, constitutes one crime, and 'harboring felons accused of a crime' another distinct offense. In the last phrase quoted word 'charged,' I take it, means a formal charge or complaint, not a mere suspicion of guilt. The word 'har-bor' means to aid the accused to avoid the penalties attached to their crime, not merely suffering them to escape or falling or omitting to apprehend

To prove the crime of accessory after the fact, three elements of proof are necessary—the felony must have been shown to have been committed; it must be shown that the defendant knew who the felons were who committed the crime, and it must be proven that the defendant heltered them from pursuit in some extent. A mere failure to act is not sufficient to constitute this crime."

Judge Varian cited several cases from the supreme court reports, which he said tended to show the foundation for his contention. He said:

"In all this evidence there is nothing that even tends to show that this de fendant gave any aid or assistance to any of these felons."

Judge Armstrong stopped the argument at this point by adjourning the case until Tuesday. On the intervening day in court is occupied with other VETERAN WM. H. FOSTER.

Deeply sympathetic and very beautiful were the services at the funeral of the late Wm. H. Foster held at noon yesterday in the Enghteenth ward chapel. Prof. Thomas was unavoidably detained by his temple duties, or he would have been on the list of pallbearers. The singing included two quartets, "Shall We Meet Beyond the River" and "When the Swallows Homeward Fly," "When the Swallows Homeward Ply," by Messrs, Pyper, Whitney, Kimball, and Ensign, and the beautiful solo "Sometime We'll Understand," sung by Mrs. Maggie Hull. ARRAIGNMENT OF JIM DONALDSON

Held in Bonds of Ten Thousand Dollars for Larceny and Robbery.

WHAT COMPLAINT CHARGES.

The "Doctor" Was Unable to Furnish Bail Last Evening and He Had To Sleep in Jail.

"Doctor" James M. Donaldson was arraigned before J. J. Whitaker at 6:30 yesterday afternoon and held in bonds of $10,000 to answer the charges of grand larceny and robbery for the part he played in the fleecing of the Mc-Whirter brothers out of $10,373 on Sept.

The bonds were not forthcoming last night and the versatile "Jim" slept as a guest of the sheriff in a cell upstairs at the county jail. The complaint sworn to by Alexander McWhirter charges in the first count that Donaldson did unlawfully take and carry away $10,373 from Alexander McWhirter on Sept. 18, 1906, at 140 west Second South street. The second count charges that by means of force and against the will and consent of Alexander McWhiter Donaldson unlawfully took and carried away $10,373 on Sept. In each count the amount is made $10,373 in order to cover the total amount lost by the McWhirter broth-

WOMAN ALSO HELD.

Donaldson's paramour, Mrs. Effice Fay, is held as an accomplice, as an accessory after the fact. Her bond was fixed at $1,000 and was promptly furnished by Edna Prescott, landlady of a "house" in an alley off Main street. She was released and moved her effects to the resort. feets to the resort.

Donaldson was considerably surprised at the amount of bonds required by the court and ejaculated, "Whew, he must think I am a bad one."

Aside from this ejaculation "the doctor" all along was as cool as the prov-erbial cucumber. He walked quietly through the back streets to the court room in company with Deputy Sheriff Sharp. The prisoner was not hand-cuffed, in fact he has not worn "bracelets" since the time of his arrest. On the way here from Hot Springs, Ark., he was a model prisoner and gave no trouble whatever. None on the train coming west knew that the couple were officer and prisoner. While Deputy Sheriff Sharp never let his man out of his sight, both worked with such diplomacy that their identity was TOOK "HEART" TREATMENT. En route to Salt Lake Donaldson told practically the same story to Deputy Sharp as his attorney, Sam King, de-tailed to the "News" yesterday. It is interesting to learn that Jim Donaldson went to Hot Springs to take treatment for his heart, at least so says his attorney.

Donaldson's heart has been troubling him somewhat since he has been con-fined in the county jail and his "dope" was taken away from him. The "News" did "Jim" Donaldson an injustice last night when it was stated that he was suffering for the stimu-lant of morphine. Three bottles con-taining drugs were found on his person together with a glass dropper. Of bottle contained a solution of opium. Donaldson has had a very dizzy ca-eer to date. He was born in Tooele county and when 15 years of age was kidnapped. For the next four years he was a cow puncher in Arizona. When returned home he and his brother herded cattle in the Deep Creek country. In a battle with Indians his brother was killed, and Donaldson es-caped after he had killed one of the redskins. After his return to civiliza-tion Donaldson took to gambling, and operated in Seattle, Denver and Hot Springs, Ark. In 1897 he went to Klon-dike, where he dealt fare and generaldike ,where he dealt faro and generally plied his trade of a gambler in preference to mining. While in Skagway he refereed the first prize fight ever held north of Seattle. The above is what Donaldson says.

HAD CONSIDERABLE MONEY. Donaldson returned from the north with considerable money and for a time made Seattle the scene of his gam-bling operations. Here he dealt fare for the Considine brothers, and was held as a witness following the killing of the chief of police by the Considines. a case that created a great stir in Se-attle. After the trial and acquittal of the Considines he returned to Yukon. but did not make a stake. He eventu-ally bobbed up in Salt Lake broke and time acted as night manager of house was closed. Since then he has had rather a hand-to-mouth existence until he made the big stake from the McWhirter brothers

PROMISED GOOD JOB.

When the American party went into power he was promised the position of chief of detectives on the police force. However the better element would not stand for this raw appointment and he was turned down. By way of sop he was then promised that he would be allowed to pull off a prize fight here, and accordingly he engineered the Corbett-Hyland contest, which received bett-Hyland contest, which received its quietus at the hands of the Salt Lake Ministerial association and the decent nent of this city. Baffled on all sides Donaldson re-turned to his old paths, and with his hook and line went angling for "suckers" and between times, it is said, acted as a "stool pigeon" for the police department.

Mr. H. L. Emory, Vice Chancellor and Master of Arms, K. P.'s, of Omaha, Neb., writes from 205 North Sixteenth street, the following words of praise for Peruna as a tonic. He says:

"It is with pleasure I recommend Peruna as a tonic of unusual merit. A large number of prominent members of the different orders with which I have been connected have been cured by the use of Peruna in cases of catarrh of the stomach and head; also in kidney complaints and weakness of the pelvic organs.
